Oh! Beautiful Bride! So Meek in thy splendor,
So Frank in thy love and its trusting surrender;
Thou hast stopped all of John's larks!
But yours may continue, for people will say,
In speaking of you, as they truthfully may,
Hereafter—Frankie Sparks!

Letter from Oregon City.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

OREGON CITY, June 14, 1872.

ED. RECORD:—Encouraged and flattered by your kind acceptance of my last article for your paper, and inspired by love for the beautiful and sublime, I again write. Comment on the weather would be commonplace, the knowledge of which comes within the conception of every one. We pause in our business career to gaze upon and admire our beautiful, clear, Italian sky; we recline in the shade to enjoy our cool, balmy breezes, and with our joy blends a pride inexpressible in the conviction that our lovely California is the brightest, fairest, richest State in the Union.

Our little burg has been a lively place of late. On Wednesday, the 12th inst., Mr. Charles P. Fosten—Mayor of our city—was married to Mrs. E. Simpson, by 'Squire Jones, of Cherokee Flat, at the white house on the hill. Truly, Mr. editor, the "Old Folks" were at home; could we judge friends by numbers, we might well congratulate the happy couple, for a goodly number was there. The ceremony was very short, but I supposed embraced everything necessary. The refreshment table was set in the arbor; cake was plentifully distributed; wine circulated freely, and everything went "Merry etc., etc."

The bride wore a dress of sea-green lustre, dark overskirt, trimmed with rich white lace, and made a fine appearance as she stood beside the bridegroom, who wore a suit of black, rich black satin vest and fancy neck-tie. Mrs.

H—d was attired in blue plaid silk, Dolly Varden overskirt trimmed with blue. Mrs. N—t wore a rich black silk, white Swiss overskirt, and looked as pretty as a pink. Mrs. S—th was richly and tastily dressed in striped linen, fitting her faultless form to a fraction. Mrs. M—r, the life of every circle she enters, wore black, very neat and becoming. Mrs. C—n wore a dress of silver-gray lustre, trimmed with brown ribbon, and "carried off" her dress well. Mrs. C—ll was, as usual, richly and becomingly dressed. Mrs. W—te wore a dress of Pique of a lovely pattern, overskirt of same. Many other ladies were present whose dresses were equally rich and becoming. The gents wore summer suits, and appeared pictures of health and happiness. In the evening the wedded pair were serenaded by the Cherokee Flat amateur musicians, after which all the lovers of the dance assembled in our school house and danced until the small hours, when all retired to sleep and be refreshed. In the ball room, during the evening, I saw one gent who had the courage to don a Dolly Varden neck-tie. On the day of the 12th everything went off pleasantly, it was the gayest day ever seen in Oregon City. Charlie, the happiest of the happy, was gentlemanly and liberal as a prince. We wish the wedded pair a long life of enjoyment, may their shadows never grow less, nor their happiness wane.

"And may their lives glide sweetly on,
In happiness and peace."

MARRIED.

At Paduch, Ky., June 17th, James R. Martin to Ada Winston.

The new-made husband is a member of the typographical fraternity, being a publisher of that State, and the fair and happy bride is a niece of our esteemed fellow townsman and mine host of the Union hotel, R. L. Patten. We drank several glasses of champagne to the happiness of the couple. May they never have occasion to regret the step they have taken, and may the sunshine of success, happiness and prosperity ever be with them, is the heartfelt wish of the MERCURY.

At the Union Hotel, Oroville, June 20th, by Justice Leonard, Charles E. Sevey to Mary J. Stevenson.

The groom "holds the ribbons" on the stage that runs between here and the Buckeye House, and has for a number of years, and we hope he will prove as loving and amiable a husband as he has been an accommodating and genial a stage man, and may the beautiful bride enter his house, "there to be a light, shining within, when all without is night." May the married career of the new-made couple be characterized by the greatest amount of happiness.

In Oroville, June 15, 1878, by Rev. Jesse Wood, Robert W. Smith to Sallie L. Sparks.

At Cherokee, June 13, 1878, by M. H. Wells, J. P., John D. Moore to Louisa S. McKune.

Matrimonial.

By reference to another column, it will be seen that our esteemed young telegraph operator, Robert Smith, has taken unto himself a better half in the person of Miss Sallie Sparks, one of Oroville's most charming daughters. We were supplied with an abundance of cake, and, with a glass or two of sparkling wine, we feasted on the strength of the happy occasion. Two "sparks" have been moulded into one Smith, and may the happy couple glide down the river of life attended by happiness unalloyed, and when, at the end of life's journey, they look back upon the road over which they have traveled, may they be able to count the representatives of their name by the dozens.

Marriage of Dr. McDermott.

On Thursday evening, at Cherokee, the Rev. Jesse Wood, of Oroville, joined in holy wedlock, our former fellow-townsmen, Dr. Wm. P. McDermott, and Miss Lelia France, daughter of the late G. W. France. The time was appointed before the death of the doctor, and it was the intention of the parties to have invited a great many friends to witness the ceremony, but the Angel of Death snatched from the family circle the kind husband and loving father, and for that reason only the relatives were invited to be present. After the ceremony, however, supper was served, and everything passed off as pleasantly as could be wished. The many friends of the happy couple will join us in the hope that they may be attended through life by happiness unalloyed.
