Vol. 1 No. 2	June 1983	In 1871, the Spring Valley Mining Company, in near-by Cherokee, built an earthen dam which formed the Spring Valley Reservoir. The head pressure, achieved by an intricate array of pipes, flumes, and ditches over 100 miles long, was used to eat away at Sugar Loaf Mt., in their quest for gold. This hydraulic operation caused a huge amount of silt and debris to flow to the farmlands below causing great damage.	(1) ZINK'S Water Witching * Wells* . Find water and septic lines. Vol. 2	Oct. 1984	Slide The first of Nov. should see the slide on Hwy 70 repaired. This slide has been a problem for several years. The road between Jarbo Gap and Grandview is undercut by a deep spring running along a thin plate. The water causes the roadbed to become saturated and slide. The original efforts to maintain the road with pilings failed. August 28th, Cal Trans knew the pilings would not solve the problem and had contracted with Roderick Construction of Oroville for $254,000 to excavate and place a drain &amp; buttress on the downhill side of the Hwy.	(1) Rock House presents Joe and Rose Lee Maphis. Vol. 2	March 1985	Leonard D. Tomasso made history in the Feather River Canyon and ultimately became one of the legends that hover over that great gash in the Northern Sierra. In 1905 the rails of the Western Pacific Railroad were being pushed through the gorge and he was proud of his chance to work on the big project. On November 1, 1909, one more spike would knot the railroad into a 928 mile long artery. As the ranking man present, he took it upon himself to drive the plain iron spike that completed the job. In 1949, the officials of the Western Pacific Railroad decided to celebrate the lines Ruby Anniversary. On November 1st, the crowd cheered as Leonard pounded the ruby spike into the very spot where 40 years before he had performed the same job!	(1) Jarbo Gap Stage Stop Cafe - Barbara Kester, Owner.
